BIOGRAPHY

Iman Siddiqi is an attorney in the Southern California office of Everett Dorey where she specializes in defending clients in complex civil litigation, premise liability, construction litigation, insurance defense, and general liability matters.

Iman is a graduate of the UCLA School of Law where she specialized in Business Law and Public Interest Law & Policy. While in law school, she served as Editor-in-Chief of the Journal of Islamic & Near Eastern Law, drafted the 2019-20 California Mock Trial case, and authored a Student Comment published in the Georgetown Immigration Law Journal. She also worked as a law clerk for Bet Tzedek's Small Business Development Program and externed at a global early-stage venture fund. She earned several awards, including the Masin Family Academic Excellence Gold Award for the highest grade in Political Asylum and Refugee Law. Iman obtained her undergraduate degrees from the University of California, Irvine with a Bachelor of Arts in Political Science and a Bachelor of Arts in Middle East Studies.

Outside of Everett Dorey, Iman oversees the Refugee Students Scholarship Program, a program she established to provide scholarships and mentorship to refugee and asylum seeker students attending UC and CSU campuses.
